III Margin trading & lending and Perpetual Contracts

This section applies only to the extent you are permitted to engage in margin trading & lending and Perpetual Contracts on gate.io. Margin trading & lending and Perpetual Contracts are not allowed where prohibited by applicable laws and regulations or gate.io user agreement. Gate.io reserves the right to amend and/or remove margin trading & lending and perpetual contracts functionalities in your Country any time with or without prior notice to you.

3.1 Margin Trading and Lending

3.1.1 Margin trading is a form of trading in which you trade with an extra amount of blockchain assets borrowed from someone on the basis of the blockchain assets you already have. On gate.io, you can use borrowed blockchain assets from other users to go short or long.

Margin trading risks:

Margin trading is highly risky. As a margin trader, you acknowledge and agree that you shall access and use the margin trading and borrowing service at your own risks:

(1) Trading markets are extremely volatile and shift quickly in terms of liquidity, market depth, and trading dynamics. The use of leverage can work against you as well as for you and can lead to large losses as well as gains.

(2) You are not eligible for receiving forked coins split from any blockchain asset in your margin account, even if you have not engaged in any margin trading or borrowing at all.

(3) The loan carries risks and the value of your blockchain assets may drop. If the value of your assets drops below a certain level, you are responsible for responding to this market circumstance.

(4) Under certain market conditions, you may find it difficult or impossible to liquidate a position. This can occur, for example, there is insufficient liquidity in the market or due to technical issues on gate.io.

(5) Placing contingent orders will not necessarily limit your losses to the intended amounts, since market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders.

(6) There is no guarantee measure against losses on margin trading. As a borrower, you may sustain a total loss beyond what you have deposited to your margin account.

3.1.2 Lending risks

As a lender, you can lend your blockchain assets to other users on gate.io by offering a loan at a set interest rate and duration on Lending page.

When you lend your assets,

(1) You risk the loss of an unpaid principal and interests if the borrower defaults on a loan and liquidation of the borrower's margin account fails to cover the outstanding loan.

(2) You risk the loss of forked coins split from the blockchain assets if your blockchain assets are in lending offers or loaned out when the fork takes place.

(3) You risk a drop of value for blockchain assets you loaned out when the value drops dramatically and you can not sell it timely.

3.1.3 To enter in to margin trading or lending,

(1) You should fully understand the risks associated with the margin trading and lending and solely responsible and liable for any and all trading and non-trading activity on your gate.io account. Do not enter into transaction or invest in funds that are above your financial abilities.

(2) You are solely responsible and liable for knowing the true status of any position or lending with any other party on Gate.io, even if presented incorrectly by Gate.io at any time.

(3) You agree to maintain in your Gate.io margin account a sufficient amount of blockchain assets required by gate.io for users to engage in margin trading and return your loan in full timely. Failure to maintain sufficient amount of assets or fail to return outstanding loan duly can result in the forced-liquidation of assets in your margin account.

(4) Gate.io cannot guarantee to stop losses even with the ability to force-liquidate any of your positions. If, after your positions are liquidated, your assets are insufficient to cover the outstanding loan, you are still responsible for any additional assets shortfall

(5) Gate.io may, in its sole discretion, perform measures to mitigate potential losses to you on your behalf, including, but not limited to, transferring balances from your margin to your exchange account and/or

from your exchange to your margin account

(6) When you lend your blockchain assets, you agree that gate.io will not be and is not responsible for any loss from offering loan on the gate.io and any losses incurred by a borrower or any other party on gate.io platform.

(7) You agree that you conduct all trading, margin trading, lending, and/or borrowing on your own account and claim full responsibility for your activities. Gate.io does not take any responsibility for any loss or damage incurred as a result of your use of any services or your failure to understand the risks involved associated with assets use generally or your use of our services.

3.2 Perpetual Contract

3.2.1 A Perpetual Contract is a product similar to a traditional futures Contract in how it trades, but does not have an expiry date. Perpetual Contracts trade like spot, tracking the underlying Index Price closely. It achieves this via the mechanics of a Funding component, that is, users who hold a position over the funding timestamp either pay or receive funding based on a funding rate and your position value.

3.2.2 Perpetual Contract Risks

Perpetual contract trading involves substantial risk of loss and is not suitable for all investors. You understand the risks involved in trading and have considered and will continue to carefully consider whether trading is suitable in light of your financial circumstances and resources.

(1) Perpetual contract is highly – leveraged. Highly-leveraged position and large contract sizes make investor vulnerable to huge losses even for small movements in the market. You may lose your entire margin on your contract account.

(2) Gate.io may, at its sole discretion, close your open order and liquidates your position without notice to you to control risks.

(3) Gate.io may close your position at the bankruptcy price of other user' s in the event of Auto-Deleveraging if you are at the priority rank of profit and leverage without notice to you.

(4) If you hold position over the funding timestamp, you may either pay or receive funding based on a funding rate and your position value. The amount of funding may be huge depending on the funding rate and your position value.

(5) Gate.io may require you higher margin levels for larger position sizes at its sole discretion.

(6) You are not eligible for receiving forked coins for any of your assets in your Contract account in the event of a fork.

(7) Under certain market conditions, you may find it difficult or impossible to liquidate a position. This can occur, for example, if there is insufficient liquidity in the market or due to technical issues on our platform. Placing contingent orders, will not necessarily limit your losses to the intended amounts, since market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. The use of leverage can work against you as well as for you and can lead to large losses as well as gains.

3.2.3 To enter into Perpetual Contracts:

(1) You are at least 18 years of age and have the capacity to enter into perpetual contracts trading on gate.io.

You fully understand the rules and risks of perpetual contracts and accept all the risks and consequences yourself.

We may, at our sole discretion, close your positions, seize your earning, and block your Account in the event we suspect or have reason to believe you are engaged in suspicious trading or other activity or have breached terms of our User Agreement. You shall not hold Gate.io liable for any loss and you will still be liable for any damages to gate.io.

(2) You agree to maintain a sufficient amount of margin at all times to meet Gate.io minimum margin requirements, which is subject to change from time to time. If the value of your positions drops below a certain level, you are responsible for responding to it with additional margin. Failure to respond can result in closing your open order and forced-liquidation of your positions. In the case of a forced liquidation, your position will be taken over by gate.io and liquidated at the bankruptcy price.

(3) You fully understand and agree: When a forced liquidation is triggered, if Gate.io is unable to liquidate the position at the bankruptcy price, Gate.io will spend the Insurance Funds aggressing the position in the market in an attempt to close it. If this still does not close the liquidated order, this will then lead to an Auto-Deleveraging event where opposing traders' positions by profit and leverage priority are automatically deleveraged. If Gate.io is able to liquidate the position at better than the bankruptcy price, the additional funds will be added to the Insurance Fund.

(4) If you hold position over the funding timestamp, you may either pay or receive funding based on a funding rate and your position value. You agree to such payment exchange based on the funding rate and position valued calculated by gate.io.

(5) You are solely responsible and liable for any trading and no-trading activities on gate.io and accept all the risks and you are solely responsible for knowing the true status of any position with any other party on Gate.io, even if presented incorrectly by Gate.io at any time.

IV Risk Disclosure Statement

4.1 Trading blockchain assets can be extremely risky. Trading markets are volatile and shift quickly. The blockchain networks may go offline due to attack, bugs, hard forks, or other unforeseeable reasons. Gate.io may experience sophisticated cyber-attacks, unexpected surges in activity, or other operational or technical difficulties that may cause service
